SUITEDIGS SOLVES NEW PUPPY NIGHTMARES

New doggie condos equipped with webcams, feeders and bathroom facilities

Pocono Mountains, PA, October 2, 2007 – The rude awakening of what life is like a few days after a new puppy comes home shocks and disappoints new dog owners time and time again. The nostalgic image of man's best friend loyally sitting by your side is destroyed by torn furniture, chewed shoes and potty training nightmares, not to mention the intense guilt you feel when you lock your new puppy in your kitchen or doggie crate for the workday.

SuiteDigs, Inc. recently launched their doggie habitat products available via their online store. The swanky condos, specially designed for smaller dogs, contain within its boundaries everything a dog needs to be comfortable, including a place use the potty. To optimize the living quarters, the Company offers treat feeders, beds and staircases.

Spurred by his need to contain an 8-week-old puppy while at work, Thomas Jackson decided against a crate or the sacrificial puppy mishap room. "I started to think about it from a dog's point of view," Thomas says. "I wanted to create something all-inclusive for a dog, a place the dog could eat, sleep, play and go to the bathroom, without making a mess for the owner."

But SuiteDigs aren't just for new puppies.

"Any small breed dog can happily reside in SuiteDigs," remarks Thomas. "In fact, my dogs sometimes hang out in there even when the family is home."

Webcams and smart home technology are also both available through a partner, allowing owners to feel closer to their dogs even when they are traveling or at the office. The internet-controlled treat feeder is a fun, interactive way to reward and pamper dogs from miles away.

Each dog habitat module measures 55 inches wide by 25 high and 25 deep, and can be combined or configured based on preference. Custom colors are also for the choosing, just contact SuiteDigs directly. Standard frames are made of black ABS composite material – an extremely strong, durable, thick plastic. Sturdy brushed aluminum windows and doors allow the dogs to enter and see out. Their sliding feature allows owners to leave them open without tripping over the typical swing-style doors of gates and creates.

Thomas Jackson began the company in 2006 with two patents pending for his creations. Through testing and creative thinking, aided by Thom's four dogs, the product was finalized and launched in September 2007. Special consideration for the high-quality and durable materials used for the habitats and accessories, along with the size of the modules, makes it cost-effective to ship via UPS Ground all over the United States. Additional shipping methods, including international, are available.

The owners were also front of mind for Mr. Jackson. "I know the guilt owners feel about leaving their dogs at home alone; I've felt it myself many times before," states Thomas. "Some people shy away from dog ownership primarily because of this issue, and SuiteDigs creates a solution for the dogs and owners alike."

The SuiteDigs modules and accessories are available for purchase online at www.suitedigs.com.
